The Marine Mammal Project began in 1960. After studying dolphins and their (16)
ability to swim rapidly and dive deeply, the project team suggested improvements that (17)
would increase the speed of boats and submarines. These dolphins also carried out (18)
various tasks – delivering equipment to divers and locating lost objects underwater.
Underwater surveillance was conducted with the help of a dolphin using a camera held in its mouth! The project was eventually downsized and many of these dolphins had to retire. Still, before they were released, the dolphins had to be re-educated. After all, it was only right for these intelligent creatures to return safely to their natural habitats.
(19)

Text 2

The extract below is taken from an article about 'Batik'.

Batik is a dyeing technique that originated from Indonesia. It utilises wax and fabric dye to create breathtaking patterns and designs on various kinds of cloth. Liquid wax is applied to a pattern on a piece of cloth before it is dyed. As the pattern resists colouring, it remains on the cloth when the wax is melted away. This is the art of batik.

In the past, batik was commonly used for making clothes. Most women in Indonesia made a living using their batik skills. Today, fashion designers worldwide use batik in their work. Interior designers also feature batik patterns in home decorations from blankets to cushion covers to wallpaper.

For each question from 21 to 25, choose the best answer. Shade your answer (1, 2, 3 or 4) on the OAS. (5 marks)

21 According to the poster in Text 1, which of the following is true about Batik World?

- (1) The batik shop had recently opened in Singapore.
- (2) Batik World has never hosted workshops and exhibitions before.
- (3) The owner of Batik World will personally welcome you to the shop.
- (4) The exhibition features only works of batik artists from Southeast Asia.

22 "Beautiful Works of Art @ Batik World". The photograph in Text 1 supports this heading by giving the impression that batik can be _____.

- (1) a profitable business
- (2) purchased by the public
- (3) used only to make clothes
- (4) made into many different items

23 "We eat, sleep, and breathe Batik!" Why did the batik shop make such a statement in Text 1?

- (1) to show their passion for batik
- (2) to spark people's interest in batik
- (3) to give people a quick glimpse of batik-making
- (4) to make people think about the history of batik

24 Based on the poster in Text 1, which of the following best describes the experience you can expect to have at the workshop?

- (1) Insightful
- (2) Dramatic
- (3) Heartening
- (4) Exhilarating

25 In both texts, the central theme is that _____.

- (1) batik creation is challenging
- (2) batik is a globally known art form
- (3) batik can only be produced by women
- (4) batik art enjoys great popularity in Singapore

Please note that the passage for Comprehension questions 66 to 75 in Booklet B is on the next page. You may now go on to Booklet B.

Refer to the passage below when you answer questions 66 to 75 in Booklet B.

In a bustling classroom filled with the chatter of students and the scratching of pencils on paper, Dale stood out for all the wrong reasons. Arrogant and insolent, he had a way of commanding attention wherever he went. Students who had heard of Dale feared him for he had a reputation for targeting those who seemed vulnerable or different. Recently, his favourite target was a lanky, bright and creative student.

Tom had difficulties sitting still and following instructions. Dale would often tease the boy relentlessly about his fidgeting and his tendency to blurt out answers without raising his hand. "Beanpole! Beanpole! Beanpole!" Dale would call out in a singsong manner whenever there was no teacher in the classroom. The other students would then join in, chanting and laughing at Tom's expense. Not wanting to worsen the situation, Tom would 10 hunch his shoulders and look down at his desk until the torment stopped.

Despite the hurtful words and mean actions directed towards him, Tom remained resilient, ignoring Dale's constant bullying. Nor did he confide in his parents who had to tighten their belts in order to pay the monthly bills. "They have too much to worry about already," he thought miserably. Drowning out the hubbub, Tom did his best to focus on 15 his schoolwork and his passion – drawing. Struggling to fit in, Tom found solace in his artwork, where he could let his imagination run wild and express himself freely.

One day, during a particularly heated exchange in the classroom, Dale went too far. He deliberately tripped Tom as he walked past his desk, causing him to stumble and spill his books everywhere. The other students erupted into raucous laughter. Then, 20 something inside Tom snapped. It was the last straw. With newfound strength fuelled by years of enduring the bullying, he decided to confront Dale with a steely gaze.

"I may struggle with focussing, but that doesn't give you the right to treat me this way!" Tom said vehemently, his voice firm though trembling. "I may have challenges, but I am more than my difficulties. I am a person with feelings, just like you." Dale was taken 25 aback, stunned, speechless and dumbfounded. For the first time, he saw Tom's pain and frustration, the impact of his actions sinking in. Never once had he stopped to consider the consequences of his bullying.

Later that day, the art teacher announced that there was going to be a talent show the following week and he encouraged Tom to take part. Forgetting the ordeal 30 momentarily, Tom decided to participate. On the big day, he stood nervously in front of the entire school, displaying his magnificent sketches on a large easel. The room fell silent as he presented the stories behind each drawing. Dale watched silently. His eyes wide and in bewilderment. Was it really Tom on the stage? After the event, he approached Tom sheepishly. "Your drawings are awesome! I wished I could draw like 35 you and ... I should not have treated you that way," he apologised.

Seeing a glimmer of genuine remorse, Tom replied, "Let's put this behind us. Bullying is never right. We can choose to be better than this." Dale hesitated for a moment, unsure of how to respond. Slowly, he reached out and grasped Tom's hand, feeling a mix of shame and gratitude wash over him. That day, Dale understood the 40 importance of empathy. He had a lot to learn from Tom.
